MANSFIELD IN BID FOR AIR MAIL STATION

City Applies For Pick-Up Stop at Request of Air Line Establishing Route.

WOULD BE LINK IN CHAIN

Service Planned as Part of New Ohio System, C. of C. Told By Company.

Mansfield today made its first bid for air mail pick-up service.

An application which, if approved, would link the city with major air lines operating from coast to coast was forwarded to All-American Aviation, Inc., Wilmington, Del., by the Chamber of Commerce.

The application was solicited by the air line which proposes to establish an air mail pick-up route through central Ohio.

The information contained in the application was sought by the company to support its application to the Civil Aeronautics board in Washington for establishment of the proposed route.

The company, headed by Richard Du Pont, now operates similar service in smaller cities throughout the eastern states and recently established pick-up facilities in several southeastern Ohio towns

Pick-up is made by a specially constructed device which allows the planes to pick up mail pouches at the airport while in flight.

Incoming mail and express is released into a net.

Postmaster Herman E. Homberger said that establishment of such service in Mansfield would aid materially in speeding up the dispatch of air mail.

That class of mail is now sent by train to Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Columbus to make connections with airlines.

He estimated that approximately 6,000 pieces of air mail are dispatched from Mansfield monthly. This does not include air express which is also delivered to air line points by train.

All-American Aviation officials wrote the chamber that representatives of the company will come to Mansfield as soon as the questionnaire is received by them to discuss the proposed service further.

APPROVE ISSUE

Plymouth District Voters OK Bonds For School.

Voters in the Plymouth school district yesterday approved a $47,500 bond issue for a new grade school by a vote of nearly six to one in a special election.

The total unofficial vote was 510 for the bonds and 86 against the proposal. In the Huron county precinct of the village of Plymouth the issue passed by a vote of 228 to 26 votes. No votes were cast in the Cass township precinct of the school district where only nine electors were eligible to vote.

The bonds will provide the school district's share of the cost of a two-story fireproof building expected to cost approximately $77,500. The National Youth administration has agreed to provide $30,000 in labor.

The building will have six classrooms and a music room, replacing an old structure which was considered unsafe for use.

Police Reinforce Lines, Congress Gets Protests on Defense Strikes

Letters Lash Labor Tie-ups

BULLETIN

BETHLEHEM, Pa.—(UP)—The Steel Workers Organizing Committee (CIO) decided today to restore its picket lines around the struck plant of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, "by force, if necessary."

As police strengthened their patrols at the Bethlehem Steel company plant at Bethlehem, Pa., and at International Harvester's McCormick works in Chicago, dispatches from Washington said congress was getting a mounting tide of mail protesting strikes on defense jobs.

Many of the letters, according to Brig. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, federal wage-hour administrator, came from parents of enlisted and selective service men demanding to know why strikes of defense workers for higher wages should be permitted when youths were being taken into the army at pay of from $21 to $30 a month.

Congress bandied proposals to outlaw strikes in defense industries and Chairman Norton (D.-N. J.) of the house labor committee appealed to workers to cooperate lest public opinion force drastic anti-strike legislation.

"I am unalterably opposed to strike legislation," Mrs. Norton said in a statement, "but I have sense enough to know that unless labor unions get together and declare a truce, for the duration of the war, in jurisdictional disputes, and employers and employees compromise their differences, it will be impossible . . . to prevent this legislation or even to preserve the legislation we have worked so hard to enact."

The national defense mediation board said today in Washington it had received a list of 12 threatened strikes from the office of production management which would involve 63,000 workers and affect the defense program.

Thirty or more persons were injured in strike disorders yesterday at the Bethlehem Steel company plant at Bethlehem, Pa., and at the International Harvester company's McCormick workers in Chicago.

Clubs thumped on heads and shoulders, and tear gas eddied outside both the plants. Scores of automobiles were overturned at Bethlehem last night: some were rolled over an embankment.

At the steel plant, 125 Pennsylvania state policemen moved into dense crowds last night and, in an hour and a half, cleared the nine entrances to the company property. More than 50 city policemen were assigned to maintain order at the Chicago

ASKS PROBE ON REPORTS BILL

Senator Charges Measure Will Set Up Bureau to Censor News in U. S.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — A searching senate inquiry into the O'Leary bill permanently authorizing the office of government reports, which collects and distributes government information, was demanded today after the house passed the bill, 200 to 142, amid talk of censorship.

Sen. Danaher (R.,) Conn., declaring that the measure gives the government right to control news at the source—and thus to deny news to the people—said that he would demand careful senate consideration of the legislation.

Democratic leaders in charge of the bill emphatically denied that it contemplates censorship. They assert it merely writes into permanent law authority for the organization, headed by Lowell Mellett, and which has been in existence under executive order.

Danaher pointed out that the bill provides that the agency shall collect information concerning the government and distribute it to the public as well as the president and congress.

"What information shall be dispensed and distributed by the agency is in its control," said Danaher. "Obviously, if the agency is to be effective it is bound to collect all the information concerning the activities of the government, but it may dis-

PROBE FIRE AT BOAT FACTORY

Authorities Check On Blaze That Damages Small Navy Craft.

NEW ORLEANS — (INS) — Authorities today investigated a fire of unknown origin which swept through a section of the Higgins Industries Bayou St. John boat plant, damaging a loading crane and two boats constucted for the United States navy.

The boats damaged, plant officials said, were of a surf landing type designed for use in shallow waters and were ready for delivery. The Higgins plant has also been constructing mosquito boats for the navy.

DIE IN FLAMES

Survivor of Tanker Blast Says 19 Perished In Disaster.

MOREHEAD, N. C.—(AP)—A survivor expressed belief today that 19 seamen died in the blazing forecastle of the 9,136-ton oil tanker Cities Service Denver, which exploded and caught fire Monday night about 100 miles southeast of here.

Carl Matthews of Charleston, S. C., assistant engineer, said here that although flames were leaping 875 to 100 feet into the air, all survivors remained on deck until certain there was no hope for the 19 trapped men.

Strikers Upset Car--Jeer Chicago Workmen

AID MEASURE FLOWN TO FDR

President Scheduled To Sign Bill Appropriating Seven Billions Today.

(By International News Service)

ABOARD U. S. S. BENSON—The $7,000,000,000 appropriation bill implementing the aid-to-Britain program was scheduled to be signed today by President Roosevelt.

The bill, only needing the president's final signature to make it law, was being flown to the presidential yacht Potomac by a United States coast guard plane.

The measure, carrying funds for the war-aid program authorized in the lend-lease act, passed the senate Monday and was signed yesterday by Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn and Vice President Henry A. Wallace.

The president's signature will release the money to provide Great Britain and perhaps other foes of the Axis with large quantities of warplanes, ships, tanks, guns, and food.

PILOTS FLYING BACK TO COAST

System Used to Speed Delivery Of Bombers to England.

A group of nine pilots, who stopped off at the Cleveland airport, said they had formerly returned west singly or in groups of two or three. But now, they added, bombers are being flown in such numbers that return pilots will be ferried back in order to be ready for the next group of planes.

Kidnap Charges Served on 3 O. S. R. Inmates; Others Plead

Taken before Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston late yesterday to plead to indictments for auto theft, the three Mansfield reformatory inmates who fled March 23 after locking a guard in a refrigerator, were served with second indictments for kidnaping.

The fugitives were then returned to the county jail to wait out the 24-hour arraignment period. They are scheduled to go back into court to enter their pleas at 9 a. m. Thursday.

Meanwhile, Judge Huston sentenced two other defendants to the Ohio penitentiary for one to 20 years and placed seven others on probation for three years.

Sentenced to the penitentiary were Charles Cowan, 46, Mansfield, indicted on a charge of maiming, and W. E. Weaver, 50, Chicago, who pleaded guilty to a charge of forgery.

Cowan admitted striking a woman in the face with a beer bottle, disfiguring her. Weaver confessed he forged a $6.50 check

TEAR UP DUE

Part of New Fourth Street Paving To Be Torn Up.

The new paving on Fourth street was to suffer its first damage today.

Workmen of the Ohio Fuel Gas company were prepared to make an opening in the roadway between North Main and Diamond streets to repair a gas main, believed by company officials, to have been damaged during construction.

A leak in the main was detected several days ago and the company has drilled approximately 30 test holes in the new paving in order to locate the break.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton said the company has promised to keep the opening as small as possible and to restore the pavement to the satisfaction of the city.

40 Mansfielders Want Job of Running Courthouse Elevator

More than 40 Mansfielders want the job of operating the new $15,000 courthouse elevator which is expected to be ready for use early next week, county commissioners said today.

Applications from men and women in a wide age range began coming in last fall when the elevator construction began.

"We had 36 the last time I counted them and several have been turned in since then," Clerk P. S. Carroll of the board of commissioners said.

Commissioners have set up no pay rate for the job so far and they were not certain today when they will choose an operator from all the applicants.

The operator is fairly sure of getting a comparatively easy job, for the elevator is automatic and operates with the push of a button, stopping at the floor indicated without requiring attention from the operator.

Workmen under the supervision of Peter Zeiber, Sandusky contractor, began the installation job last November. The elevator was purchased from Westinghouse.

While the wood scaffolding around the elevator shaft has been removed, it is expected to require several days to finish detail work on the job.

Serbs Join In Protests Over New Axis Pact

Police Called to Quell Disorders; Turks Shout 'We Are Ready' as Deputy Warns of Likely Attack on Nation.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—Reports that Serbia will secede from Yugoslavia and endeavor to form a separate autonomous nation under Soviet protection reached London today.

(By Associated Press)

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia—Rioting broke out in the center of Belgrade at noon today in protest against Yugoslavia's alliance with the Axis powers.

Police and soldiers armed to the teeth rushed to the scene and quelled the outbreak, which occurred a short time after Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic returned from Vienna, where he signed the Axis pact yesterday.

Many persons were arrested before police halted the fighting, which started when Axis sympathizers attacked a parade of students bearing British and American flags.

The paraders already had marched through the business district, singing patriotic songs.

Police and soldiers jammed courtyards throughout the city, ready to cope with any demonstrators who threatened to get out of hand.

Cvetkovic no sooner had reached the capital than he went into conference seeking to end the disorders which had been agitating the country for 24 hours.

The scene at the station, when Cvetkovic and his foreign minister stepped from their train, was somber.

Hundreds of persons already were reported under arrest in the provinces as a result of yesterday's demonstrations which threatened to reach grave proportions.

Serb peasants, students, Communists and the rejuvenated Comitaji (committee of dissenters) which dates back to Turkish empire days took a leading part in the disorders.

Kosca Pecanac, one-time Comitaji leader and hero of the 1918 Salonika campaign, was reported in southern Serbia recruiting sons of his World war comrades for a new fight against German domination.

Young Serbs besieged the Greek and British legations, asking transportation to the Albanian and the Greek fronts to join the battle against the Axis.

Two thousand peasants, many armed with pitchforks, marched in Hadji Popovic, central Serbian city, shouting "We want war!" Thousands participated in similar demonstrations elsewhere, openly expressing sympathy with Greece and Great Britain.

In some places, police made only perfunctory efforts to halt the demonstrators.

An indication the widespread student demonstrations were highly organized was seen in the sudden appearance of hundreds of identical Yugoslav flags, all bearing the slogan, "Long live the king!"

NAZIS CHARGE INTERFERENCE

Claim Right to Retaliate For U. S. Interpretation of Monroe Doctrine.

(By International News Service)

BERLIN—The United States is twisting the Monroe Doctrine into an instrument for interference in Europe and Germany reserves the right to retaliate, authoritative Nazi quarters said today.

The German charge was based on the statement of Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles in Washington yesterday with regard to Yugoslavia.

(Editor's Note: Asked at a press conference whether the United States had attempted to prevent Yugoslavian adherence to the Axis, Welles said it was his government's policy to make known to other governments its hope that the sovereignty and independence of all nations would be respected.)

"This is a very interesting interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine," a spokesman said.

"We shall reserve for ourselves the right to make a similar interpretation at a suitable time."

(Editor's Note: This statement was not amplified. Germany has frequently compared her own "protective" measures on continental Europe with the Monroe Doctrine and maintained she had the same right as the United States to establish an orbit of influence in her own sphere. Diplomatic observers speculated as to whether the German declaration indicated

Lenten Reminder

Oh, that I knew where I might find Him! that I might come even to His seat! I would order my cause before Him, and fill my mouth with arguments. I would know the words which He would answer me, and understand what He would say unto me.—Job 23:3-5.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"I DON'T think you'd tell them anything intentionally," I said, "but you might let something slip inadvertently, and it is that possibility which I must guard. But I must have one promise from you Ronald is going to see you when your 'headache' is better, and is going to plan with you about the trip back to Weirhampton tomorrow with Uncle Dicky, so the whole thing will seem plausible to your father and mother. Will you co-operate with him to the fullest extent, and in return take my assurance that neither he nor anyone else will ask you any questions, and that when you return to Weirhampton, no one will embarrass you with questions or espionage."

"You mean nobody will be watching me that I can see or catch," she retored. "There'll probably be plenty of 'G' men on my trail," she added childishly.

"Oh! you're not as important as that, Carolyn," I told her with airy deflation, laughed lightly to take the sting from the remark—or to thrust it more deeply—I did not care which. "But your promise to co-operate is. Are you going to give it to me?"

"Of course," she replied shortly. "What else can I do?"

"To tell you the truth, Carolyn, nothing," I said, coolly. "But I'm glad you're willing to co-operate. I'll go now, and hope nobody sees me on the way back."

"I hope so, too," she said, then hesitated, and looked at me with a question evidently upon her lips.

"Does Ronald know anything about Marion?" she asked.

I considered my answer swiftly, decided that it was unsafe to trust her with anything, and answered her mendaciously.

"No, he doesn't," I answered, telling my conscience the while that it was partly the truth, for Ronald knew nothing of Marion's whereabouts, the vital information which we were trying so hard to discover.

"I'm sorry," she said. "I hoped maybe—"

She broke off abruptly, and I moved back to the door.

"I must go now, Carolyn," I said. "Go back to bed. But nobody will bother you if you decide to come down to dinner."

"I'd rather not," she said, and I nodded understandingly. "Mother'll send a tray up here."

"I know that," I told her, and then I opened the door the merest crack, saw that the hall was deserted and, opening the door wider, slipped out and then sped noiselessly down the hall to the room Helena had assigned me.

I might as well profit by the ruse I had employed to get upstairs, I told myself, and, lying down upon the bed, closed my eyes without going to sleep, and rested for five minutes. Then I rose, showered luxuriously and dressed swiftly in the gown I had just taken off, a street costume which I knew, with the addition of more elaborate neckwear, would have to serve as a dinner dress as well—provided I could stay for dinner—the timetable for New York trains would decide that, I knew.

Then I went back downstairs, secure in the knowledge that nobody knew of my visit to Carolyn, but anxious to know how Dicky had succeeded in planning our absence from the Brixton household long enough to telephone.

I did not find out at first, for their welcome was so warm, their inquiries about my headache so solicitous, their pleasure at my recovery so palpable, that there was no opportunity for anything else. But when I was ensconced fussily by Sam in the most comfortable chair, Dicky spoke to me, and I immediately snapped to attention without appearing to take more than a cursory interest in what he was saying.

"How about it, old dear?" he asked casually. "Do you feel equal to going down the street with me for a little expedition?"

She's Young, Can't Get Dates

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX.

"What's wrong with me? Most people consider me pretty and attractive. I have a good disposition, am kind, thoughtful, like to have fun, and am self-confident. But up to now not one boy has taken an interest in me. I make friends easily with the people I meet, but I am not the aggressive type.

"There are some boys who try to tell me with their eyes that they like me, but they do nothing about it. I don't believe in trying to attract boys because then naturalness dies, and I think naturalness is very attractive. Other girls have dates while I do homework although I'm not so terribly studious.

"Aren't there any boys for girls like me? If so, where are they? I'm 16 years old

"K."

At your age you should have a little patience and stop hypnotizing yourself with the idea you are unpopular. The chances are that you are one of those slow-blooming damsels who does not create a riot when she enters a room at Sweet Sixteen. There is a technique to popularity just as there is to playing the piano, singing, acting or anything else worth while.

I refuse to regard you as the forgotten girl who hears the rest of the crowd talking about their dates but never manages to secure one for herself. Or, if she goes, the date is a flop and the boy who has asked her never repeats.

As you write that most people consider you pretty, you needn't worry over your appearance. Even if you are downright homely you needn't despair, because there are other things which make for success as well as beauty. There is perfect grooming. There is that certain smartness and dash of clothes which the French call chic Every girl, if she will only pass up chocolate creams, pastries, and starches may be the architect of her own good figure.

A girl, unless she's moronic can study, read, listen and acquire a good line of conversation If you want to be really popular, learn how to do things. Be a good dancer; learn the latest dances at a place where you will meet the right sort of people. Never join a cheap or common dancing class Remember that a good dancer is never a wallflower.

Don't be affected, don't assume a fashionable accent. I think this advice is unnecessary to you because you tell me that you lay a great stress on being natural, which is all to the good. There is really nothing more charming than a girl who doesn't put on silly airs. Undoubtedly you will achieve dates in time. Please bear in mind that well-reared girls do not make dates before they're 16. And when this momentous occasion comes around, be easy on the lad's pocketbook. Don't order the most expensive things on the menu.

If the boy hasn't a car, don't look like a lost soul when you see him making for a bus. The only thing wrong with you is youth—the most divine of all gifts. Learn to appreciate it.

"The Authority on Authorities"

NOT "PURE VELVET"

"They either gain you a trick, or they fail to gain you a trick, but they can't lose one," said a fair player the other day in explaining finesses to a neophyte But the very next hand proved the fallacy of that. Following it resulted in the defeat of an otherwise air-tight contract. The plain fact is that plenty of finesses entail a risk of your entire enterprise, whereas refusal of them might make its success a sure thing.

A double of the 2-Clubs would have been rather profitable for North, but he was trying to become declarer, although he had four spades for his partner South finally got the contract anyway, and then proceeded to lose it by his inexperience.

West led the club Q to dummy's A, and the declarer proceeded immediately to his fatal mistake He led the spade J and finessed it to West's K. The club 9 was returned to the K and East ruffed with his spade 8. This set the contract because there was no way to avoid a loser in clubs and one in hearts.

All that South had to do to make his contract was to play to the spade A immediately after winning the club lead, and then another spade, which would have made the defenders trumpless A more experienced declarer would have reckoned that West's vulnerable overcall must have included the spade K and also a six-card suit, since West was a pretty experienced player not given to frequent doubtful overcalls when vulnerable.

Of course, if the spade finesse had worked, the declarer could have made an extra trick above his contract, but was that worth risking the whole business?

CONTRACTS LET FOR CITY WATER AND SEWER JOBS

City Makes Awards For New Lines, Supplies To Be Used on Projects.

Contracts for materials for new water and sewer projects in the city totalling $3,884.25 were awarded to three companies yesterday, Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton announced.

The contracts were for materials for three sanitary sewers and for valves for the completion of the Weldon-Lexington avenue $70,000 waterline project.

Roger J. Au of Mansfield was awarded the contract for the construction of 700 feet of sanitary sewer on Linden road near Maple avenue. He was low bidder at $1,039.

R. O. Darling and Son company was awarded sanitary sewer contracts for the construction of a 1,400 foot line from Maumee avenue to Paxford place on Linden road and from Linden to Trimble road on Paxford place and another of 500 feet on Lawnsdale avenue near Burns avenue. The Darling bids, $559.76 on the Linden road project and $1,921.95 on the Lawnsdale project, were both the lowest offered.

Crafton also announced that a $363.54 contract for three 12-inch, three eight-inch, two six-inch and two four-inch valves was awarded to the Hardware and Supply company of Akron.

He said that the lowest bidders only bid on 150-pound pressure valves and that the city felt it needed more leeway. The Hardware and Supply company was the lowest bidder for 200-pound pressure valves.

LUCKY NUMBERS POP UP AGAIN

Three years ago Davis was in Europe and met a war-time buddy, Pierre F. Clauzel, a Frenchman, also a member of the 349th corps. When they went to a restaurant they received a hat check—you guessed it—No. 349.

European Featured.

Casting of Erwin Kalser in "Escape to Glory," opening today at the Ohio with Pat O'Brien and Constance Bennett in the featured roles marks another climax in the European debacle. Kalser was a prominent actor in Berlin who fled from Berlin via Switzerland to America. Ironically enough he plays a German who sacrifices his life to help the fatherland in this production dealing with a soldier of fortune, played by O'Brien, who sells his loyalty for cash until he discovers that loyalty is not for sale. John Halliday, Melville Cooper and Alan Baxter are in the cast.

Eccentric Professor.

Presenting John Barrymore as an eccentric professor who discovers a formula for human invisibility, "The Invisible Woman," opening at the Madison today casts Virginia Bruce in the role of a dress model who offers herself as subject for the scientist's experiments to torment a young playboy. John Howard appears as the playboy who finances the professor's experiments. The supporting cast includes Charles Ruggles as Howard's butler; Oscar Homolka, a gangster chief; Edward Brophy, Margaret Hamilton and Eddie Conrad. "Garden Hoofs," starring Jane Withers with Charles "Buddy" Rogers is the accompanying feature.

News Service.

Dramatizing the life story of Julius Reuter, a founder of the first world-wide news service, "A "A Dispatch From Reuter's," now showing at the Ritz, gives Edward G. Robinson one of his most brilliant roles. The narrative covers some 30 years in the middle of the nineteenth century during which Reuter, starting with a small pigeon post to bridge communication gaps, builds up a news gathering and disseminating agency which covered the world. Robinson as "Reuter" is surrounded by a cast including Eddie Albert, Edna Best, Gene Lockhart, Otto Kruger and Nigel Bruce. Frank Morgan is featured in the comedy, "Keeping Company," with Irene Rich and Virginia Weidler, shown as the co-attraction.

Flying Fists.

Visitors on the set of "Girl From Havana," starting Thursday at the Park watched a real boxing match with relish as Victor Jory and Dennis O'Keefe staged a bout. In this production Jory and O'Keefe play oil workers in South America who are never content unless they are socking each other over some feminine heart. Claire Carleton, New York stage actress, Steffi Duna, Rogers Haliday are in the cast. "Colorado," a western with plenty of music, is the second attraction. Roy Rogers portrays a young intelligence officer in the Union army sent to Denver to investigate Indian uprisings in the production.

* * *

Enoch Arden Wife.

An Enoch Arden wife who returns home after a seven-year absence due to a sea disaster only to find that her husband is embarking on a honeymoon with wife No. 2 furnishes continuous laughter in "My Favorite Wife," playing at the Majestic with Irene Dunne in the title role. Cary Grant plays the bewildered husband and Gail Patrick the role of the second wife.

In "Courageous Dr. Christian," the second feature, Jean Hersholt finds himself in the role of an unwilling bridegroom all because a widow has been enamored of the doctor and misinterprets a charity move as a proposal.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—William Keighley, the movie director, had his option lifted the other day. He received formal notification that he would be welcome to continue as professor of course 280bU (cinema direction) at the University of Southern California. Salary $5 an hour, or $10 per two-hour lecture, once weekly.

ROBBIN COONS

Every Friday evening Keighley, no absent-minded professor, takes the classroom platform and tells a class of 20 to 30 students how it's done. He has been doing it, faithfully, for one semester already.

"I try to discuss movie-directing as it is, not as it is in theory," he says of his work. "To give them an idea of actual, practical conditions met in the studios."

Results? "I doubt very much that any student will step from the classroom into a directing job. However, several of them have been able to get jobs in studios."

Social note: Genevieve Tobin (Mrs. Keighley), now a faculty wife, has received her first invitation to a faculty tea.

* * *

Speaking of "actual, practical conditions," Keighley could tell the boys and girls (and probably will(of what rain, in quantity, can do to a production schedule and a budget.

On his current "The Bride Came C. O. D.," Chick Chandler has two lines to say: "Where's the bride?" and "Where's the telephone?" Chandler has been on salary for three weeks, awaiting clearing weather, before the outdoor scenes requiring his presence could be shot.

Roller Appoints 15 To Serve on Group Outlining Plans For 22nd Campaign.

Plans for the annual campaign of the Mansfield Community Fund took on impetus today with the announceemnt of the campaign committee which will hold its first meeting late this afternoon at Fund headquarters in the Walpark building.

Rev. David N. Roller, pastor of First Presbyterian church, who was named general chairman of the 22nd annual campaign several days ago, announced the personnel of the committee which will outline plans for the drive and set up the working organization.

Serving on the committee this year are Dr. F. J. Heringhaus, George W. Stephens, Donald S. Black, L. A. Ott, William C. Mead, R. B. Gardner, William F. Bell, John T. Shook, Richard Fensch, Mrs. Tom Ford, Mrs. V. E. Vining, Mrs. W. L. Layton, Aaron Goldsmith, C. N. Shultz and R. M. Calene.

The group, Rev. Roller pointed out, was selected as being representative of the community, with men from industry, up-town business and women's organizations.

The most important task confronting the committee, Roller said, was selecting majors to head the classified divisions, and assisting them to get their captains. More than 300 volunteer workers are enlisted each year to raise the money for the operation of the city's social service work. Dates for the campaign will be set today.

The goal for the campaign workers will be set by the budget committee, of which A. C. Rhoads is chairman. Seven new members of the budget group will be announced this week, according to Robert Remy, vice president of the Community Fund.

Last year Mansfield citizens pledged $62,265 for the maintenance of the ten agencies operating under the Community Fund. One new agency, the Mansfield Dental Clinic, was accepted into the Fund this year, making a total of 11 agencies.

FIRE DAMAGES W. FIFTH HOME

Flames Start In Kitchen, Then Spread to Attic; Firemen Battle For Hour.

(Picture On Page 2)

Flames starting near a cookstove in the kitchen of O. P. Jones' home at the rear of 35 West Fifth street yesterday spread through the back of the house and caused firemen to work for more than an hour to control them.

Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger said that the work was made more difficult by fire between the partitions and in the attic of the building. Firemen were forced to punch holes in the roof and flood the home to check the smoldering flames behind the partitions.

Much damage was caused by the water which ran down from the attic loosening plaster and flooding the floors. Mrs. Ada Schuler is owner of the building. Jones could make no estimate of his damage.

Firemen were called out a short time earlier to the home of G. H. Meilinger, 121 Parkwood boulevard. The cook told them she had called them when grease on the stove caught fire. She extinguished the fire before firemen arrived.

U. S. REPAIRS FOR BRITISH SHIPS CALLED ADVANTAGEOUS

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The opening of American navy yards for repair of damaged British men-o'-war, military experts said today, may give England a great strategical advantage in her battle of the Atlantic.

The use of the naval repair facilities, authorized by the terms of the lease-lend act, would not interfere with the huge U. S. fleet construction program, it was said, but their availability would increase the British convoy efficiency in the western Atlantic.

Under the lease-lend provision, it was explained, this country is extending to British fighting ships, in effect, the same privileges accorded to British merchant vessels. Since the war began, British cargo carriers have been putting in at private American yards for repairs of all types, and no restrictions have applied to work of this character.

Any repairs to British warships in American navy yards, experts believe, would be so-called "light," or overhaul work. Heavy major repairs, it is assumed, would continue to be handled in British dockyards. They emphasized, however, that the ability to have light repairs made without lost time had great naval significance.

The difficulty of having American yards make major alterations—such as replacing armor plate or ordnance—is that the British use a different system of measurements and virtually all their armament parts and their ammunition differs in size from those used by the U. S. navy. However, Britain might find it desirable to ship to this country sufficient special supplies to handle such big work.

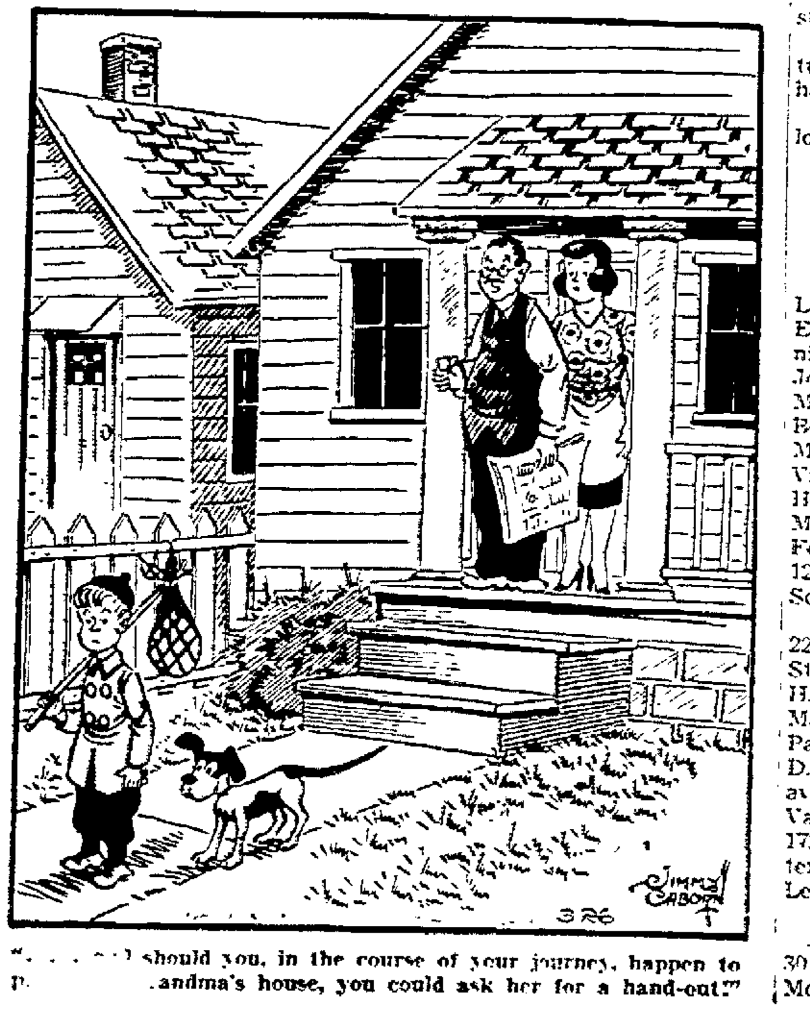
Laff-a-Day



". . . [illegible] should you, in the course of your journey, happen to p[illegible] andma's house, you could ask her for a hand-out!"

Up and Down THE STREET

After looking over the complaints that came to his office today, Sheriff Frank E. Robinson was sure spring has arrived. A flock of 10 or 12 wild ducks has been keeping Ralph Zimmerman of near Pavonia awake at night and he wants the sheriff to do something about them. Zimmerman said they have been making their headquarters in a stream back of his home and going into his poultry yard to eat the corn he puts out for the chickens. At night they make so much racket he can't sleep, he told the sheriff. The case was referred to conservation officers. Don Murphy, 191 Crystal Spring, complained that a neighbor was permitting 25 pigs to roam the street and lawns in his community. That was more in the sheriff's line and he agreed to do something about it.

The problem of feeding and lodging transients going through Mansfield has become more acute with the first signs of spring. And some of them are a headache to social welfare agencies. They "beefed" about having to eat beans and when an agency sent them to a hotel for the night, they complained loudly because they were put on the third floor and there was no elevator. When a veteran's organization gave them two bus tickets to Wooster, they almost refused to take them because they wanted their fare paid all the way to Scranton. One social worker commented "that's not looking a gift horse in the mouth — that's kicking him in the teeth."

Yesterday was a red letter day in the life of Paul Jerger, jr., 437 Grace street. It was his 21st birthday and to make the day complete, his first son was born at General hospital. The baby has been named Darrell Anton. The proud father, who will cast his first vote this year, is a paint machine operator at the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate plant. Mrs. Stella Kennedy, the maternal grandmother, is one of the youngest grandmothers known in Mansfield. Mrs. Kennedy, 47 West Temple court is 35 years of age and her next birthday falls on April 28.

The city's sewage disposal plant is going high-tone. City officials yesterday sent $1 to the Mansfield Telephone company to change the directory listing of the city's plant from "sewage disposal plant" to "sewage treatment plant."

DENIES APPEAL

Supreme Court OK's Ashland Home Building Trusteeship.

COLUMBUS—(UP)—The state supreme court today denied a motion for an appeal submitted by several Ashland residents to dissolve a trusteeship established for the construction of an old ladies' home at Ashland.

The petition filed in Ashland county court of common pleas sought to terminate a trusteeship created by the will of Julietta McConnel, who died Nov. 26, 1926. She provided that Hillis Cunningham be named trustee to $23,929, which was to be used in the erection of an old ladies' home.

No home has been constructed according to papers in the case.

The plaintiffs contended that the trust was in violation of the statute of perpetuities.

The common pleas court returned a judgment for Cunningham.

The appellate court upheld the lower court verdict.

PARTY LINES DOWN AS GROUP HITS NEW 'TAX'

Opponents Lash Fee Proposal; Liquid Fuel Tax Bill Goes to Bricker.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— A portion of the Ohio senate—Republicans and Democrats alike—was up in arms today against proposed legislation to require a state inspection of automobiles twice a year.

The motorists would be charged a 50-cent fee for each inspection, which Sen. Wayne L. Hays (D.-Belmont) described as a "tax" of $1 a year on every auto owner" and contrary to Gov. John W. Bricker's no-new-taxes pledge.

The measure was brought up for a vote again today after its author, Sen. Walter G. Nickels (R.-Tuscarawas), retreated yesterday in the face of heavy opposition.

Earlier, the senate had approved three measures imposing additional restriction on the operation of motor vehicles. Sent to the house, they are briefly as follows:

Requiring motorists involved in an accident causing $50 damage or serious injury to a person to report the incident to the state highway department within 15 days;

Prohibiting minors under 16 from obtaining a driver's license, with certain exceptions, and holding the parent or guardian responsible for a minor's driving conduct, and

Setting up a drivers' examination section, manned by a maximum of 75 examiners, in the state highway patrol.

Senator Nickels asserted the inspection bill would contribute more toward safety than any of the other measures.

The administration's bill to re-enact the one-cent-a-gallon liquid fuel tax for two years was sent to Governor Bricker for signature today after a favorable 74 to 57 house vote.

The Democratic membership voted solidly against the bill. The Republican majority knocked down Democratic amendments to divert $5,900,000 of the levy's $14,000,000-a-year yield to local governments, to exempt farmers from payment of the tax and to limit its extension to one year.

Another bill passed by the senate and sent to the house would authorize men in the armed forces to register by mail and cast an absent voter's ballot.

Richland Sports Group Can Obtain Baby Pheasants

Pheasant chicks to be reared by sportsmen's organizations and farm groups in Richland county will be provided by the Ohio division of game conservation, C. L. Kimmel, game protector for the Mansfield area, said today.

The chicks will be furnished sportsmen's groups, farm youth groups and other organizations complying with state regulations, Kimmel said.

The program is a part of the conservation department's co-operative pheasant raising activities. After they are reared, the pheasants are used for game re-stocking purposes.

Pheasants will be delivered to co-operators at the age of four weeks. First deliveries probably will be made the first week in June, Kimmel said.

Detailed information concerning the program may be obtained from Kimmel or the state conservation department.

STAGE RALLY IN LOUDONVILLE

Columbus Pastor Addresses Mansfield Baptist Association.

Guest speaker on the Baptist Young People's rally of the Mansfield association, held in Loudonville last night was Rev. C. F. Banning, of the First Baptist church, Columbus.

Rev. Banning spoke on the subject of young people's leadership. The welcoming address was given by Mabel Sellers, of Loudonville. The song service was led by Allan Balbet. Special music was provided by a girls' trio, composed of Marilyn Danner, Carolyn Danner, and Nelljean Hofer. An organ solo was played by Dale Sanderlin, of Galion.

Games and refreshments completed the program.

He is survived by his widow, Nettie.

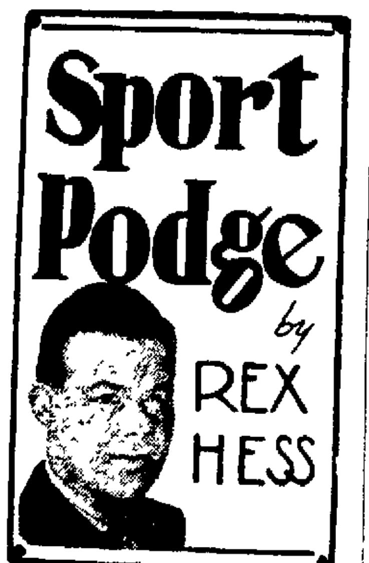
Mansfield Athletic Supplies Cop City Cage Crown



Mansfield football fans should get their fill of their favorite sport this balmy springtime, with three, and possibly five regulation games on the calendar, and all for the free.

The games have to be for the free, and strictly practice contests, to meet the approval of the Ohio High School Athletic association.

So the fan flock can flock for fun, and on the run, to hear the whistle and timer's gun, while athletic department attaches gather round to chant that little ditty: "We'll make no money, but oh honey, AIN'T WE GOT FUN?"

* * *

Madison and Mansfield high gridders will close their four weeks of spring training with next year's teams meeting seniors who performed last fall. Both games are planned under the lights.

In addition, Coach Paul Snyder of the Tygers is considering bids from three other schools for practice games. Don't be surprised if all three bids are accepted. One game is already on the fire for sure with only the date to be decided.

* * *

Football fans flock to the game,
Now we know that spring has came.

Said Director Harry Mehock: "The gym show Friday night will be under the direction of Snyder. Hoffman and Snider, because Mehock will be on his way to Pittsburgh with a bunch of tracksters."

Queried Snyder: "Are you taking Lightnin' Jones to Pittsburgh?"

"Sure," retorted Mehock.

"He's half the gym show," protested Hoffman.

"He's half the track team," responded Mehock.

"Hunh," chorused Hoffman and Snyder.

* * *

(Later.) Announced Mehock: "The track team will leave early Saturday morning for Pittsburgh."

So Lightnin' will be on hand for the gym show, and what is more to the point, so will Mehock

You weren't planning a powder, were you, Harry?

* * *

And what a sorry day it would be for the high school if Lightnin' should strike twice in the same place. But Lightnin' on strike is something they'll not have to worry about.

* * *

Five women, one man telephoned this department yesterday a. m. to learn the result of the Long Island-Ohio U. bucket game of the night before.

Which should prove something or other. Possibly that women not only read the sport page, but that they're more interested than men in finding out the result of sport events.

And then again, maybe it just happened that way.

Defeat Blue Goose In Championship Tilt.

By REX HESS
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

Mansfield Athletic Supplies had too much "young" for the waning Blue Goose Sohioans, defending champions, and copped the City A league hoop title last night at the high school gym by a 42-36 verdict.

* * *

Sohions didn't give up without a battle, but when points were needed the Athletics outsped their older rivals and chalked up the markers that kept them in front most of the way.

* * *

Athletics took the lead on a pair of buckets by Lyons, but Blue Goose came back to tie the score. Once more the Supplies edged to a three-point lead, only to see the count knotted at the quarter 8-8.

Then came the pay-off. In three minutes of the second period Athletics hit the hoop for eight points while holding Blue Goose scoreless, and at the half the new champions were out in front 24-17.

Paced by big Al Stickler, the Sohioans rallied in the third period, and trailed by only two points, 30-32 as the quarter ended.

But the Athletics took command again in the fourth stanza. Scoring point for point until the score reached 39-36, the Supplies added three more in the closing minutes for certain victory.

* * *

Supplies made many points on a fast break, while Blue Goose depended on Stickler's under-bucket work to keep them in the game. Big Al took scoring honors with 18 points while the Athletic scoring was well distributed.

* * *

In a preliminary game Rex Billiards, champions of the Friendly House league, won from B'nai Brith, Y. M. C. A. church league, title-holders, 41-23.

THREE-SECOND RULE ATTACKED BY COACHES

NEW YORK —(AP)— The nation's college basketball coaches, in almost perfect agreement that courts and playing equipment be standardized, have managed to get together on one rule change they consider desirable.

Concluding the two-day convention of the National Association of Basketball coaches yesterday, they voted to recommend to the national rules committee that the three-second rule be eliminated. Under present rules, a player is allowed to retain possession of the ball in front of the foul line only three seconds.

Twenty London movie houses have been so damaged by air raid bombs they cannot be repaired—news item. That, says the man at the next desk, must be what they mean by the "theater of war."

RAILS, STEELS LEAD FEEBLE MARKET RALLY

Corporate Bonds Point Higher as Reports Show Upswing For Railway Earnings.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Steels and rails tok the lead in a feeble attempt at a stock market rally today.

Bethlehem Steel opened ¼ higher, then gave up the gain as the market waited for developments in the CIO workers threat of a "finish" fight against the company.

Holding small advances were U. S. Steel, Republic Steel, Atlantic Coast Line, Pere Marquette prior preferred, Common-Wealth & Southern preferred and Union Carbide.

Corporate bonds pointed higher. Commodities were mixed.

February reports of several big railroads drew attention to the continued upswing in operating income.

Net operating revenues of the Santa Fe in the first two months of the year were up to $3,809,211 compared with $978,408 in the like 1940 period. New York Central's net for the two months rose to $8,746,293 from $5,798,938 last year. Further traffic improvement was reported for March.

Police Called to Quell Trouble; Turks Defy Axis With Shouts of 'Ready.'

Nazis Hail Pact as Diplomatic Dunkirk

BERLIN —(U.P.)— Nazis, hailing the entrance of Yugoslavia to the Axis as a diplomatic dunkirk for the enemy, arranged an impressive welcome today for Japanese Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, whose visit they regard as demonstrating that the totalitarian nations throughout the world present a solid front.

Newspaper headlines, as crowds lined beflagged streets to cheer Matsuoka, were:

"Yugoslavia ignores Anglo-Saxon bluff," "war mongers and war extenders arrive too late," "England loses another battle," "neither British methods nor coarse wild politics of Roosevelt abel to hinder result," "Britain's diplomatic dunkirk: it will not be the last."

Matsuoka and his party had crossed the frontier at Malkinia last night. Under spotlights, at a station decorated with flags, they had left the Russian train which brought them from Moscow and to the music of an army band walked over to a German train which brought them on to Berlin.

Turks Shout: 'We Are Ready'

ANKARA—(INS)—A thunderous roar of "we are ready!" resounded through the Turkish chamber of deputies today when one of the members bluntly warned of a possible attack by the Axis powers.

The spokesman was Deputy Tankut, the first member to address the chamber on international affairs since Russia and Turkey signed a pledge to respect each other's position if either is forced into the orbit of war.

The chamber's reaction clearly demonstrated the importance which Turkey attaches to the agreement.

"Turkey stands as a fortress of steel against any attempted invasion," Tankut said.

"Danger has now come to the Turkish frontier as a result of Axis aims.

"We stand prepared to halt any aggression against our sacred independence.

"We have an heroic army and a gread leader (President Ismet Inonu, successor to the late Kemal Ataturk.)

"We are invincible. If anyone attacks us, they will break their head."

It was at this point that the deputies arose to their feet as a single man and shouted:

"We are ready!"

Meanwhile, defensive preparations continued throughout the country. Dispatches from London and elsewhere forecasting an Axis offensive aimed at Turkish collaboration now that Germany has sealed up the Balkans with Yugoslavian adherence to the tripartite pact were read with keen interest and concern.

Nazi Admits Unrest In Norway, Report

LONDON —(INS)— General Von Falkenhausen, military governor of Norway, has admitted to his superiors in Berlin that popular unrest is growing in that occupied country, International News Service learned today.

British agents recently obtained a secret report from Von Falkenhausen which concluded:

"It would seem that the population recently has adopted a firmer attitude of hostility toward the Reich.

"Should demonstrations of this hostility endanger our garrisons, it would be imperative to make use of our arms with merciless severity."

Nazis Machine-gun British Town

LONDON —(INS)— A number of persons, including several women, were killed today by bombs and machine-gun bullets from two Nazi planes which raided a southwest town after swooping out of low clouds. The victims were trapped before they could find shelter.

One raider was last seen streaking back to the continent with smoke pouring from his tail.

"Does this bill not thus give this agency the authority to mobilize the attitude of the people through the press, radio, pulpit and classroom, simply by releasing only so much and such kinds of information as some bureaucrat shall determine?"

Under terms of the bill the office of government reports is to provide a central clearing house through which individual citizens may transmit inquiries and complaints and receive advice and information.

PLAN ADDITION FOR HOSPITAL

Crowded Condition Reported at Shelby Institution By Board Head.

SHELBY—An addition is being planned for Shelby Memorial hospital, Harry Sotzen, president of the hospital board of trustees, said today.

Due to the crowded condition at the hospital, the board has found it neecssary to enlarge the building, Sotzen said.

For the past year the hospital has been filled to near capacity, Sotzen disclosed, and in a number of cases the patients could not be taken care of in the 40 beds now available for use.

The cost of the proposed addition has not been estimated, but plans and estimates are expected to be ready within the next ten days, Sotzen stated.

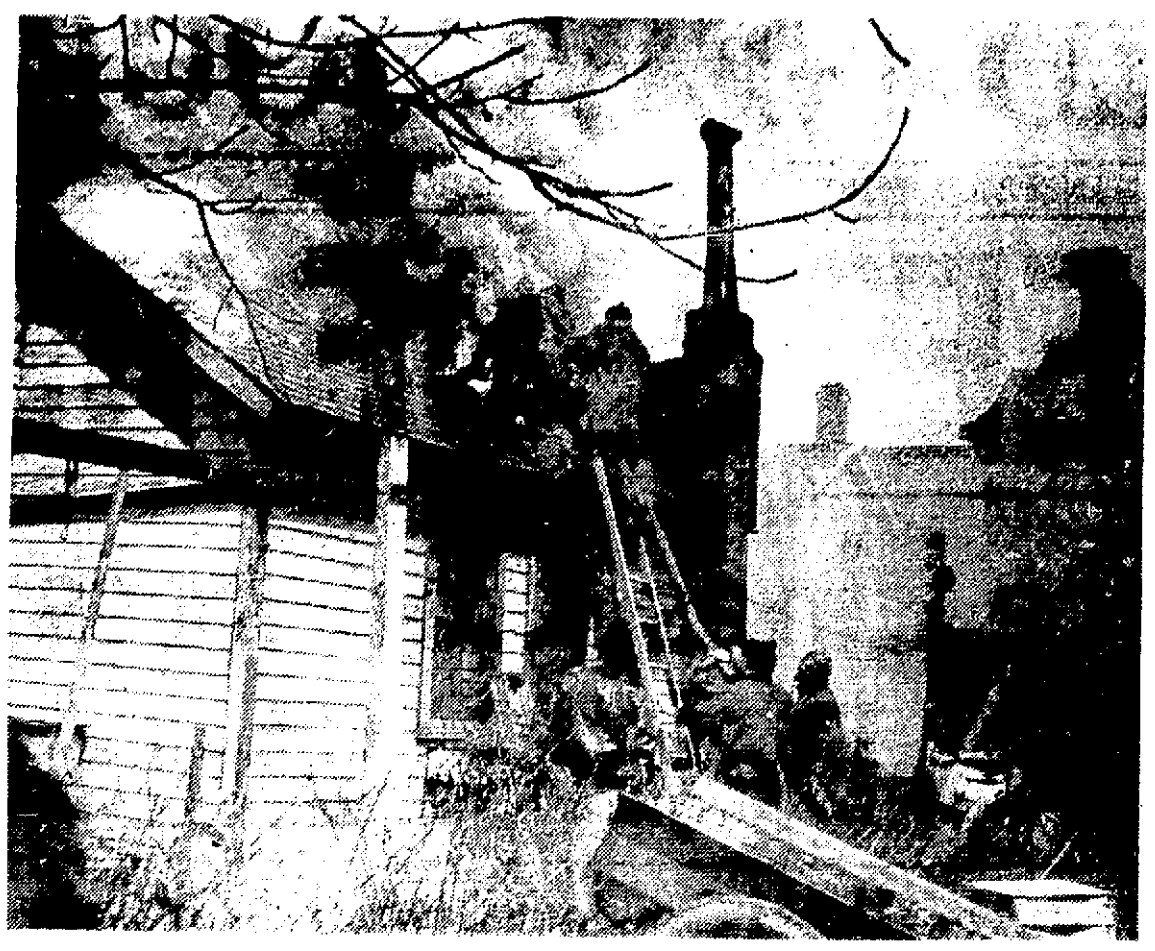
Mansfield Firemen Fighting Blaze In Home



The photograph above shows firemen as they fought a stubborn blaze at the home of O. P. Jones, rear 35 West Fifth street, yesterday afternoon. They had to punch holes in the roof to get to the fire which had eaten into partitions. No estimate was placed on the damage caused mostly by water flooding the interior.

KIDNAP CHARGES SERVED ON TRIO

O. S. R. Inmates, In Court on Auto Theft Indictments, Face New Counts.

to pay his room bill at the Court hotel. Later, he sold his watch for enough to pay the bill, but he had a record of several previous offenses, Prosecutor Harold Lutz said.

Defendants who were released on probation and the charges against them were:

Harry Simpson, non-support; Walter Carr, Albert Twyman, and Henry Smith, breaking and entering; Charles "Buddy" Morton, removing mortgaged property; Clayton Baldwin, assault and battery, and Sebastian Teschler, non-support.

Refusing to accept pleas to indictments for auto theft, Judge Huston yesterday asked Prosecutor Lutz to serve kidnaping indictments on the reformatory fugitives, Ronald Long, 24, of Hamilton county; Elwood Deckerhoff, 24, and James Layton, 26, both of Columbiana county. Deputy Sheriff J. R. Hetler served the indictments in the courtroom.

Sheriff Frank E. Robinson said he understood the trio was willing to plead guilty to the auto theft charges which carry sentences of one to 20 years in the penitentiary. The penalty for kidnaping is five to 30 years.

It was learned the fugitives were indicted secretly on three separate charges of auto theft, kidnaping, and robbery, but authorities said they probably would not be arraigned on the robbery count.

The kidnaping charge was the result of the alleged abduction of Harold Schnittke, 24, Mansfield, the night of March 15 near Melco by the three reformatory inmates as they fled south into West Virginia.

They allegedly forced Schnittke to drive them to a point near Loudonville where they forced him out of the car, robbed him of $5, and took the car. The trio was captured near Ripley, W. Va., three days later after abandoning the car.

RED CROSS PLANS CAMPAIGN TO REGISTER NURSES FOR DEFENSE

Plans to launch a six weeks' drive to enroll every eligible Red Cross nurse in this area for defense service will be made at a dinner meeting of Red Cross nurses in District 5, Friday at 6:30 p. m. at the Woman's Club.

Red Cross nurses in all counties in the district comprising Richland, Morrow, Ashland, Wayne, Crawford and Knox have been invited to attend, according to Miss Lucille B. Lindsey, secretary of the Red Cross nursing group for the district.

"In order to meet the national defense needs of the Army and Navy, more than 10,000 new enrollments in the Red Cross First Reserve must be obtained throughout the nation," said Miss Lindsey.

"The army," she added, "has requisitioned 4,000 Red Cross nurses for its Army Nurse Corps Reserve. This number must be on active duty in Army posts and camps throughout the country by next June. In addition the navy is building up its Reserve Nurse Corps to a total of 1,500 nurses."

Miss Lindsey explained that to become a First Reserve Red Cross nurse a woman must be under 40 years of age, single, physically fit for all types of duty including military service, a high school graduate and a graduate of an approved school of nursing. She must be affiliated with the American Nurses association and registered under state laws.

At the Friday night meeting, an organization for future service will be effected and arrangements made to assist in the enrollment. Mrs. Warren C. Fort, secretary, requests that all Red Cross nurses contact her in regard to the session.

Congress Gets Protests By Mail on Strikes In Defense Work.

The state policemen arrived at Bethlehem after a melee between local police and strikers. The city policemen's squad car was upset, tear gas bombs were tossed by both sides, a patrolman was hospitalized for gas burns, and five strikers were temporarily blinded by the fumes.

The CIO union announced tentative plans to carry the strike today to another big Bethlehem mill at Johnstown, Pa. In its several plants, Bethlehem is working on more than $1,000,000,000 worth of national defense orders.

Some hope for settlement was seen in an announcement that the CIO had arranged a truce meeting (10 a. m.) today with representatives of the ERP and the company's industrial relations manager.

The steel company attempted to carry on work inside the Bethlehem plant with non-striking employes, and arranged to feed and lodge them inside the gates. The mill employs about 21,000 men.

CIO employes walked out at the Harvester plant in Chicago Feb. 28 demanding union recognition, wage increases, and elimination of piecework. The company reopened the factory last Monday, and some AFL and unaffiliated employes returned to work. Police Capt. John Stege declared that roving "CIO goon squads" attacked some of the employes yesterday.

Lewis Continues Talk On Soft Coal Contract

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— With the deadline only six days away, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, sat in again today on wage-hour negotiations for the Appalachian soft coal industry in an effort to speed drafting of a 1941-43 work contract.

The present contract expires at midnight next Monday, and there was a possibility that the negotiators might work during the week-end when sessions ordinarily are recessed.

Leaders of a sub-committee representing the UMW and the Appalachian region explained that the discussions were technical and detailed, involving considerable time.

Today's discussion again centered around union demands for a $1-a-day wage increase and a guaranty of 200 working days a year.

Mediation Board To Get Test Case Soon

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Labor department officials said today that the new defense labor mediation board would be given a "test" case — probably the Bethlehem Steel strike—late this week or early next.

The outcome of that case, and those that follow, it was predicted, probably will determine the disposition of anti-strike legislation now pending in congress. If the board succeeds in settling its first cases expeditiously, officials predicted pending legislation would be dropped; otherwise it may be pushed to speedy enactment with administration approval.

Some members of congress, however, have announced that they would seek anti-strike law regardless of the mediation board's action.

Meanwhile, labor-defense officials described the mediation board which met yesterday for the first time as "labor and industry's last chance" to settle their disputes by conciliation and mediation. There were strong indications in several high government quarters that President Roosevelt agrees with those who favor direct federal intervention if mediation fails to keep production lines open.

some future plans by Germany to exert influence in what are now regarded as purely American fields of diplomatic activity.)

Meanwhile, German quarters said that United States activities in the Atlantic ocean designed to aid Britain provoked extension of the German blockade zone to include Iceland.

"We have information," one well informed German source said, "that American ships regularly have been unloaded at Iceland for reshipment of their cargoes to England.

"Therefore we have decided to put an end to this kind of activity."

Berlin circles implied that beninning today German torpedoes will sink any ship, American or otherwise, which enters the extended blockade area.

Nazis Assert Plane Sinks Merchant Ship

BERLIN — (AP) — Nazi long range bombers were declared by informed sources to have sunk a 10,000-ton British merchant ship today out of a convoy protected by five destroyers, two cruisers and six patrol boats in the North Atlantic.

They said a British freighter, also attacked from the air, was left sinking 250 miles west of The Hebrides, Scotland.

German warplanes destroyed 5,000 tons of merchant shipping and damaged an addition 15,000 tons in attacks on vessels in the vicinity of Great Britain yesterday, the German high command said today.

STRIKER FINED

CONNEAUT—(AP)—Fines and costs of $174 were assessed Harold Johnston, striking employe of the Burke Machine Tool company, who was convicted on three assault and battery counts. Three non-union workers at the plant brought the charges.

EVERY SCHOOL AND EVERY BUSINESS HAS ONE OR TWO

In a school full of bright, self-respecting students, there are very likely to be one or two completely lacking in good common sense. And that goes for business, too...particularly the beer retailing business.

Out of thousands of beer retailers who conduct respectable, law-abiding businesses, there may be a few "dunce" retailers who disobey the law or permit anti-social conditions.

These few unwanted retailers are a menace to the future of the beer industry...and also of the benefits beer has made possible. Right here in Ohio, beer provides employment for 50,196 persons, supports an annual payroll of $46,441,543 and contributed $10,717,714.00 last year in state taxes.

It is the brewers' responsibility to make good beer—the retailers' responsibility to sell beer in wholesome surroundings—and the legally constituted authorities' responsibility to enforce the laws. All of these, working together with the public, are needed to protect the future of beer.

You, too, can help the cause of moderation by (1) patronizing only reputable places where beer is sold; (2) and reporting any violation you may observe to the duly constituted authorities.

COMPANY MOVES TO CRESTLINE

Industry Began With Making of Crystal Ornaments as Hobby in Galion.

GALION — Valerie Halle Crystals, Inc., a company which started when Richard Beam was discovered making crystal ornaments of netted glass in the back of his filling station—just as a hobby—will complete moving from Galion to Crestline by April 1, it has been announced.

The company has been located at 316 Harding Way West and in order to accomodate the large number of orders for the crystal objects, the company has leased the new location, a brick factory and office building in the southeast part of Crestline formerly occupied by a rubber plant.

There are now 22 employes, six of whom are women, making by hand crystal ships, animals, baskets, and other ornaments.

Richard Beam who learned the art of netting glass from an old Frenchman when he lived in Mansfield several years ago, was making the articles in the back of his filling station here when he formed a partnership with Emil Warschauer and Frederick Thaler, two years ago, and his hobby became a paying business.

The articles are sold in gift shops in all except about three of the 48 states of this country, and they are shipped to several foreign nations.

Shall Strikes Imperil Nation?

BORROWING from the thought of Lincoln, as expressed at Gettysburg more than three quarters of a century ago, it may now be said:

> Eight score and five years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Then it was the crisis of a great civil war—now it is the crisis of totalitarian threat from without, and labor strife within our own borders, that is "testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure."

In these crucial days when the fate of our nation hangs in the balance, when millions of people in Europe have already been deprived of liberty of thought and action, and when the surviving remnants of democracy are fighting desperately for self preservation, a small minority in the United States is permitted to wreak havoc with the national program of industrial production of war materials, vital to defense and aid to Britain.

> If Hitler were, at the moment, directing the affairs of the United States in his own interests, he could ask no greater show of sympathy and co-operation than is now being evidenced by the numerous strikes in essential defense industries, the violence associated with the Bethlehem Steel and the International Harvester strikes, the internal dissension in the ranks of organized labor and the revelations of racketeering methods used in collecting exorbitant initiation fees and dues in connection with construction work on government projects.

If Nazi, Fascist and Communist hirelings were seeking a way to weaken this nation in its determined course to safeguard itself from aggression and also to give all possible aid to Britain and the other embattled democracies, they could pursue no more effective course than to foment the disunity being evidenced by strikes in defense industries, or in the production of materials necessary to the steady maximum output of these industries.

But it is not Hitler, Mussolini or Stalin who is directing the course of this nation—nor are Nazi, Fascist or Communist agents or sympathizers assumed to have a voice of authority in either of the antagonistic labor organizations.

It is President Franklin D. Roosevelt who is the executive head of this nation and also commander in chief of its military forces.

A recent statement by President Roosevelt bears repeating, for the emphasis it merits:

> "The determination of America . . . must not be obstructed by unnecessary strikes of workers, by short-sighted management, or by deliberate sabotage. . . . Let me make it clear that the nation is calling for the sacrifice of some privileges but not for the sacrifice of fundamental rights. That kind of sacrifice is for the common national protection and welfare; for our defense against the most ruthless brutality in history; for the ultimate victory of a way of life now so violently menaced."

And President Roosevelt also said: "Wise labor leaders and wise business managers will realize how necessary it is to their own existence to make common sacrifices for this great common cause."

Germany has no labor unions. Russia has no labor unions. Italy has no labor unions. The privilege of groups to organize and bargain collectively, and the "right" to strike, are accorded only to people who are adjudged capable of self government and who evidence willingness to proceed, in orderly manner, to exercise their privileges and rights under the law.

The time is again at hand for every American, in whatever capacity he may serve, to at least temporarily put bickering, greed and self interest in the background and to once more become "dedicated to the great task that lies before us . . . and to highly resolve that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom . . . that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Arbor Day and Conservation Month

WITH Thursday, April 10 proclaimed as Arbor and Bird day, it is also announced that all of April will again be observed as Conservation month in Ohio.

The week starting Monday, April 7 will be specially devoted to emphasis on conservation in schools, under joint sponsorship of the state department of education and the Ohio division of conservation and natural resources.

During the week of April 14 Ohio will join in nationwide observance of National Wildlife Restoration week.

In his proclamation of Arbor day and Conservation month Governor Bricker said: "In these critical times, when the resources of European nations are playing such an important role in the events of the world, it is fitting that we, here in Ohio and America, give serious effort in the preservation and restoration of our God-given natural resources . . . Great public interest in conservation was stirred last year in Ohio through a month's observance by sportsmen's groups, farm groups, civic organizations, women's organizations, and all persons interested in conservation."

Health Benefits From Bombings

A BRITISH PHYSICIAN is quoted as saying that in some ways England has benefited from the bombing. Health for instance. He explains as follows:

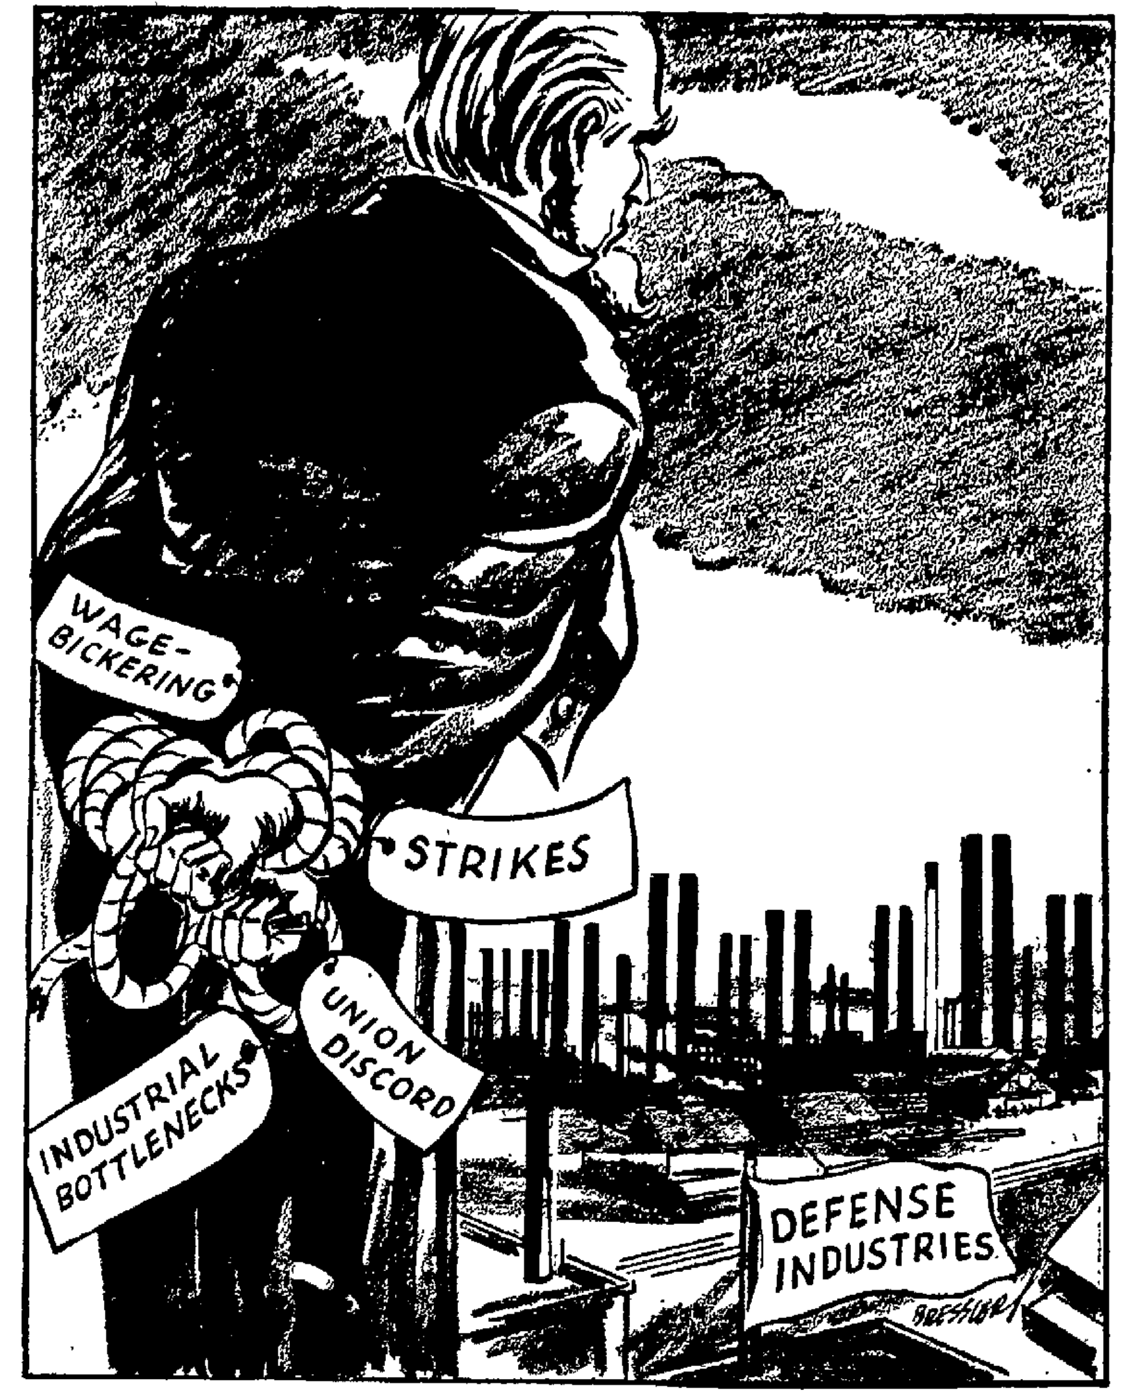
"Getting proper rest, eating more rationally and keeping indoors at night, people in the war zone are naturally growing healthier. If a man with a hangover faces a bombing, his nerves go jittery, so there is less drinking. There are no shows by night now to encourage him to stay out late, and the home life of Britain has gone back to what it was in our grandfathers' days."

So it appears that, after all, some benefits accrue from unpleasant experiences. It does seem, however, that health might be conserved without resorting to such drastic measures.

In that matter of history repeating itself—it is interesting to note that all past wars came to an end.

Once more it's "billions for defense but not one cent for tribute."

TO AID BRITAIN, OR HITLER—WHICH?



Listen World!

Dare to Dream

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

QUAINT questions people ask you. Listen to this one: "When," says she, "did you stop dreaming? My dreams stopped at 28, when I realized how hopeless they all were."

When did I stop dreaming? I've never stopped dreaming! My dreams have been the spur that urged my life onward . . . the light that lit the darkness . . . the hope that comforted the heartbreak* . . . the courage that uplifted me when I would have surrendered. I cannot imagine anyone living a rich or brave or significant life, without dreams.

Dreams are the source of every fine gesture, every brave rebellion. Every step in human progress has been based on those urgent, inarticulate yearnings we call dreams. The primitive savage, discontented with the danger and discomfort of his cave, longed for a safer, more commodious dwelling. Thought of it, dreamed of it, until he found his answer in the first crude tribal group of tents.

That same savage, longing for an expression which he could not name, scratched the story of his life on the stone walls of his cave, where you may see them today. Out of that first confused dream came Art.

Everything we possess . . . everything we are . . . is the result of someone's groping, someone's dream. Whether it be a painted chest or a standard of nobler living, it sprang from a dream. Dreams are not merely something that come when we slumber. They are all hidden hungers and secret visions. Waking or sleeping they urge us on. Dreams are the flame God breathed into the lifeless dust. If that flame once cools, we return to the dust again, although we may dodder around a long time before we're buried.

Dreams are the one thing which no one can take from us . . . which cannot be affected by war or economic changes . . . which are our only real personal property and negotiable asset. And no man who retains his dream is ever really poor or conquered. For the man who can still dream of a greater and more beautiful life for himself and his fellows shares the vision of God and is warmed by its splendor, even though his starving, humiliated body walks in rags and disease.

But there's a tremendous difference between vital, constructive dreaming and that form of sentimental lolligagging which we call "day-dreaming." Of all indoor sports, day-dreams are the silliest and most futile. Instead of helping us achieve something, they provide a way to escape all reality, and are more insidious than the most vicious dope.

It's one thing to dream of making something useful and beautiful for all men . . . or of facing and conquering some problem which will lift your own life, and those you love, to a higher level. But it's quite another thing to drift in egotistical visions, seeing yourself as a Hollywood star . . . a great orchestra leader . . . a merchant prince or a glamor girl. One dream will produce action. The other will leave you stranded on the davenport, for keeps.

Don't give up your dreams! But be sure they are not mere day-dreams!

Dare to reach out toward a fuller, finer existence. But don't try to kid yourself, or anyone else, by huddling in your bedroom slippers, cheating at solitaire.

THE ONLY DREAM THAT'S WORTH ANYTHING CARRIES A PUNCH WITH IT . . . AND A LOT OF PERSPIRATION.

Sight Defect Is Highway Menace.

—By DR. CLENDENING

AUTOMOBILE accidents, which cause more than 30,000 deaths a year in the United States, are due, in most cases, to carelessness, impatience and taking chances. A certain number are due to eye defects in drivers and these have been catalogued by Dr. Conrad Berens of New York City after prolonged study.

A California study showed that 20 per cent of all motorists involved in fatal accidents had a low visual acuity in one eye and that none of them knew it. Dr. Berens catalogues visual requirements for motorists as follows:

Visual acuity — should have 20/40 in one eye with or without correcting lenses provided there is no active eye disease; 20/200, or better, in the other. For persons who do not come up to this requirement a limited license is recommended.

Visual fields—Field for motion to 70 degrees temporarily in each eye as tested with 5mm. test object and 7 foot candles of illumination.

Judgment of distance — All drivers should be able to touch a white ball brought down in front of them from above at a distance of 3 feet, four out of five times. If the applicant cannot pass this test his speed should be limited to thirty miles per hour at night and forty miles per hour during the day.

Light sense — Drivers should have rapid adaptation to darkness after adaptation to light. The threshold for light difference should be normal.

Binocular vision — Normal binocular vision at 6 meters with the Worth test or one of its modifications. If tests for binocular vision cannot be performed accurately either because of binocular instability or the fact that one eye is totally or partially blind, a limited license should be given, limiting the speed to forty miles per hour during the day and thirty miles per hour at night.

Motor anomalies — That is to say, trouble with the external muscles of the eye. These can be tested by a technical test too complicated to describe here but if an applicant cannot pass this test he should be given a limited license.

The one-eyed driver is a particular problem. He should never have more than a limited license to drive a car.

Timely Editorial

Ousting Radical Teachers

Following the revelation that many school teachers in New York City are members of Communist, Nazi and Fascist groups, school officials have announced that proof of such connection will result in dismissal. The avowed purpose is to purge the schools of subversive elements and alien sympathizers. Doubtless this will take considerable purging. New York has been a hotbed of radicalism for some time and there has been an official tendency to encourage rather than discourage it. Most notorious in this connection was the conduct of various WPA writer and art projects, which were dominated by Communists. Unemployed who were not sympathetic to communism could not get on the projects.

Perhaps it will seem strange and bewildering to the Communists to suddenly find themselves being kicked down the steps, after being patted on the head and fed choice tidbits from the table for years.—Ohio State Journal.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Gloomy Report By Donovan After Semi-Official Tour of Near East

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Colonel "Wild Bill" Donovan, semi-official observer who has been touring the Near East, brought a decidedly gloomy report back to Washington.

Donovan told Secretary of the Navy Knox and Secretary of War Stimson, the two Republican members of the cabinet who were largely responsible for sending him, that British chances were anything but rosy in the Balkans. The Greeks, he found, were riding the crest of the wave but were successful more because of their superhuman bravery and the weakness of the Italians than because of their real military strength. Against a strong, well-equipped foe, such as the Germans, it would be a different story.

The Turkish army, Donovan also reported, is poorly equipped when it comes to modern weapons of war and is worried over Russia.

In North Africa he found that General Weygand was not disposed to act independently of Vichy, and the French in general seemed despondent, floundering in their policy and almost completely lacking in leadership.

Note—Colonel Donovan got his name, "Wild Bill" in the famous Rainbow division where he was wounded three times, was awarded all three U. S. medals for bravery. He later served as assistant attorney general under Coolidge.

Hopeless Court Fight.

THE retirement of salty Justice James C. McReynolds was a big surprise even to his associates on the supreme court. As an irreconcilable New Deal foe, he had repeatedly indicated his determination to fight the Roosevelt regime to the bitter end.

Therefore, his sudden resignation was a considerable mystery and it was generally believed that recurring illness and advanced age (79) finally combined to break McReynolds' resolution. But this was not the reason.

Actually, McReynolds threw up the sponge because of the third term victory.

"It was a hopeless fight," he explained to an old friend. "I was all alone and what could one man do there. I couldn't get anywhere, so I stepped out."

Note—When another friend asked McReynolds if he intended to remain in Washington, he snapped, "Certainly, why shouldn't I? They don't own this town."

Price Policeman.

WITH the OPM pushing production and the 11-man mediation board handling labor problems, Roosevelt is quietly planning still another agency to round out his defense machine.

This third unit will ride herd on prices.

Head of the new agency will be Leon Henderson, New Deal veteran, whose experience as a hard-boiled price policeman goes back to NRA days.

Also, as price controller of the old Defense Commission, Henderson knows the defense picture thoroughly, already has several big scalps to his credit. It was his forceful crack-downing that tumbled the soaring prices of lumber and scrap; also put a lid on second-hand machinery price flurries.

Roosevelt will work out details for the price control unit during his vacation cruise, and this was one reason why Attorney General Bob Jackson was included in the party. He will advise on the legal angles.

In addition to absorbing Henderson's crack staff on the old Defense Commission, the new set-up also will take over the Defense Commission's Consumer Division headed by Miss Harriet Elliott.

This is a massively manned outfit with a payroll totalling more than $280,000 a year, but with few accomplishments — except for a flood of press handouts. Chief difficulty is that it has no real authority. Miss Elliott, sincere, well-intentioned, lacks the punch to be an effective administrator.

How much of her top-heavy staff of masterminds will be retained remains to be seen. But it is sure to go under the pruning-knife.

Roosevelt said nothing about it publicly; but privately he did a lot of talking about the new price control unit before he departed. The gradual upward price trend, as a result of the expanding priority list, has worried him considerably, and the last thing he wants is a high-cost-of-living problem.

Retailers particularly have been concerned about the upward price movement, and through their advisory committee, have urged regulatory action before things get out of hand. The advisory committee has quietly kept Miss Elliott informed of price boosts, but nothing has come of it.

World war executives, among them Bernard Baruch, have warned Roosevelt that he can't dally with the price problem and that delay may lead to inflation. They have urged the imposition of blanket price controls on the ground that the price problem cannot be dealt with effectively by piecemeal action.

Roosevelt, however, has been leery of taking such a drastic step. He proposed tackling the matter via the more cautious route of setting up a price control agency headed by Henderson.

Stark's Economy.

ONE Roosevelt policy which has the 99 per cent support of the American people is his Good Neighbor program with Latin America. Yet even today, some high officials are not willing to exert themselves to make that policy anything more than lip service.

For instance, Admiral Harold Stark, chief of naval operations, has been urged by the state department for four months to invite the chiefs of all Latin American navies to visit the United States. And after arguing that he hadn't the staff to entertain them, the admiral finally has agreed to issue the invitations.

However, he is now opposed to letting the Latin American admirals see anything of the U. S. navy except the east coast. He is planning to take them to Washington, Norfolk and Philadelphia. He does not even propose to take them to New York, mecca of every Latin American.

Furthermore, he does not plan to take the Good Neighbor admirals to the Pacific coast where they can really see the fleet. All of which is a definite setback to the state department, which wanted to win real friends among the Latin American naval leaders.

Reason for Admiral Stark's lack of hospitality seems to be chiefly budgetary He says the navy has only so much money to spend for entertainment. He has no objection to the Latin Americans viewing the fleet on the Pacific coast, or even flying to Hawaii, as is proposed. But he says it would cost too much money to take them there.

And when it was proposed that each of the Latin American admirals be given a gold cigaret case as a memento of his trip—a type of gift usual when distinguished U. S. officials visit in Latin America — Admiral Stark threw up his hands in horror.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Stephin Fetchit's valet is a prize-fighter. He was loudly cheered when introduced at the recent Golden Gloves matches, but the judges were roundly booed when they gave him the decision. The crowd thought the other fighter won. It was so angry it was still roaring when the next fight got underway. The announcers, despite their amplifiers, were completely drowned out.

In her earlier days on Broadway Miriam Hopkins would live nowhere but in Greenwich Village. Now she demands handsome suites in expensive hotels overlooking Central Park.

I WISH Judith Anderson had been cast in the leading role of "The Corn Is Green" instead of Ethel Barrymore. Miss Barrymore has won great praise and has received continuous plaudits since the play opened, but I can't forget Miss Anderson in "Family Portrait," nor cease regretting that I will never, probably, have a chance to see her in the Barrymore role. Her portrayal of Mary in "Family Portrait" was one of the two or three most memorable nights I have ever spent in the theater.

Announcement that the Theater Guild has received two new plays from that long-absent son of Manhattan, Eugene O'Neill, recalls that he was born exactly where the center of Broadway now it. But neither of the O'Neill dramas will be produced this season. They are so outspoken that the Guild fears censor trouble.

The recent snow storms may not be the heaviest in the history of this metropolis, but they caused more traffic snarls and, coupled with the bus strike, annoyed pedestrians more than any I remember. In nearly a decade of living in New York I remember only one or two instances of snow remaining in considerable quantities more than 24 hours on the streets. As this is written it has been piled high for four days, with the end nowhere in sight.

THAT new novel of the Civil war, "Hang My Wreath," reads like a comic strip. It doesn't go in for much character development, but not even Jack Armstrong, the All-American Boy, could get out of some of the situations you find in this short, fast novel. It was written by "Ward Weaver." The New York Times says it has a sneaking suspicion that Mr. Ward Weaver bears a striking resemblance to an author known as F. van Wyck Mason. A thumbnail description of Mr. "Weaver" on the book's jacket says he is a bachelor who lives in a cabin in the Sierra Nevada mountains. But when a reporter telephoned to inquire whether Mr. Weaver and Mr. Mason were one and the same, the publisher replied with elaborate subtlety, "Our lips are sealed."

What has become of Lucy Cotton, former showgirl who married millions and who, for a while shaved her head so that she could wear wigs to match her gowns?

A Farmer's Diary

Maple Syrup Time

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I WALKED into a maple grove of about 200 trees. Many were very old and these had two pails, while younger trees had but one. From the corner where I entered, I could see, far down the gentle slope, scores of newly painted dark red pails clinging to the drab bark, at about an equal height. The sugar bush had been tapped just yesterday, for the shavings torn out by the bit were moist and fresh and had the delectable fragrance of partially frozen maple wood.

I walked deeper into the woods. A large wide snowdrift lay inside the western border. The old worm fence was still half buried. The day seemed strangely calm for late March. The big trees appeared perfectly at rest.

A bluejay screamed, and I saw him alight at the edge of the snow. His clean blue coat made lovely contrast with the melting drift. A flicker laughed until it echoed, springlike, among the trees about me. Delighted, I stood and felt the odors of thawing mould, melting snow and upward surging sap rise and enfold me. In the silence the plenteous pleasing drip, drip, drip into the brimming pails was more rhythmic than rain upon a cottage roof.

Down at the southeast corner, gray vapor rose from the sugar house. A great rank of poles and finely split trunk wood was set against a massive tree near the door. I moved in that direction without much effort of my own. Between the columns of eddying vapor a sturdy farmer of more than middle age stood stirring the boiling sap.

"Fine day for this work," I said in greeting.

"Tain't had time to get bad since I opened yesterday," he returned, and kept on skimming. "Today the trees'll run two pails I b'lieve and that'll make a lot of sap. I just took a batch of eight gallons off and 'twas as clear and nice as any I ever made."

The sweat ran down his close-cropped heavily bearded face and he mopped it with a faded towel that hung near the door. All the while the fire box beneath the long low pans sizzled and roared with leaping flames. The sap steamed and sputtered and filled the house with sweetish, appetizing odors.

What a pity, I thought, as I went away, that maple sugar making in Ohio will be only a memory to the next generation.

CHAPTER IX

"Let me alone!" Joan cried as she felt Eric's arms about her.

She was not aware that the office door had opened until a hand seized Eric and whirled him around.

"Paul!"

Paul's face was grim. "You dirty rat!" He smashed his fist full in Eric's face with a blow that sent him spinning across the room.

Eric staggered to his feet but there was a smile on his evil face.

"You'll pay for this, Sherman! You seem to forget I have something to say about this business."

Joan leaned weakly against the desk, sobbing.

"Shut up and get out!" Paul ordered, advancing toward Eric again.

And at that moment Karl Miller appeared in the doorway. With one appraising look he took in the situation. His voice cut like a whip through the tense atmosphere. "What's going on here?" he demanded.

No one seemed inclined to answer him but he read the story in their faces. "I want to talk to Joan—alone!" She had never heard him use this tone before. His voice was edged with steel. His eyes were hard. He seemed another Karl, a man she had never known.

As Paul turned to go, Joan ran to him. "Thanks, Paul!" she said, her voice trembling.

But Paul did not look at her. His voice was strained. "Don't mention it!"

When they were alone, Karl said, "It won't happen again, Joan. I'll see that Eric doesn't annoy you."

* * *

Desperately she tried to regain control of her shattered nerves but sobs shook her. Karl put his arms about her and his touch was magic. "Don't cry, Liebchen! There's nothing to be afraid of now."

She clung to him, feeling strength in his assurance. "Oh, Karl, I love you!" The words tripped over each other in stammering sincerity.

Karl Miller, pressing his lips against her white forehead, smiled.

* * *

The days of November marched by with astonishing rapidity. Joan was not bothered by Eric Strom again and her fears vanished. Nor did she see Paul Sherman. If he had been following her before, he was not now. Karl was more attentive than ever, and Joan, with the radiant assurance of a woman loved, checked off each day as more perfect than the last. Her heart-shaped face had taken on a new sweetness; the green eyes were more wistful. There were shadows of fatigue beneath those eyes and she was thinner, but Joan Leland had never been more beautiful.

Sometimes she doubted her efficiency as Karl's secretary. She typed letters scarcely knowing what she was writing; she made appointments, she wrote out contracts, always with her mind on Karl, her eyes watching the door, waiting for him to come in. But if she was inefficient Karl did not seem to notice it. He never complained about her work. He was unfailingly tender and considerate.

One rainy night Joan said to Sybil, "I've never been so happy in my life."

"It's too good to be true," Sybil prophesied gloomily. "I still don't like Karl. The more I see of him the less I trust him. And another one I don't care for is that Mrs. Murdock who runs the beauty shop."

"Is that Karl's fault? He got you the job. That's enough, isn't it?"

Joan had come home for dinner and Karl had told her she need be back at work until nine, an hour later than usual.

"I never heard of such crazy hours," Sybil objected. "Karl certainly isn't very businesslike about the club. I don't see how he makes anything."

Joan walked restlesly up and down the living room. "Karl makes plenty of money. He's a very clever man." She glanced at the clock. "I think I'll go back early. Karl might need me." When she and Sybil were on the subject of Karl Miller it always led to an argument. Joan was impatient to get away. It was shortly before eight when she left.

* * *

Happily she opened the door of Karl Miller's office but the smile on her face faded when she saw that Karl was not alone. Eric Strom was with him.

"I'm just leaving," Eric said, and without a word to Joan he walked past her and down the corridor.

Karl did not seem surprised that she had arrived early. He made no comment upon her appearance. But the thought persisted in her mind that perhaps Karl had deliberately told her not to come to work at eight because he knew Eric would be there.

Quick to read her thoughts, Karl said, "I didn't think you'd want to see Eric, so I told you to come later."

Instantly she was reassured. It was kind of him to spare her a meeting with Eric Strom. After all, there was no reason that Karl should not see his partner in his own office. If she had followed his instructions, everything would have been all right.

"Joan," Karl was saying with his quick smile, "I hate to ask you to do this on such a bad night but I can't leave the office and I want this package delivered." He held out a small leather portfolio.

"I don't mind, Karl! Where does it go?"

"Do you remember the night I took you aboard the freighter?"

She nodded and he went on, "I want it delivered there. Take a taxi and go immediately."

Joan fastened her coat and slipped on her gloves. "To whom shall I give it?"

"They're expecting you. Someone will meet you. Give him the package, and come right back. You'll find a taxi outside." He kissed her briefly.

Joan enjoyed her errand. It was fun riding through the rain-swept streets to the Embarcadero. There was a stiff wind from the bay and from time to time the taxi skidded on the west pavement. When they arrived at the pier Joan asked the driver to wait, and clutching the portfolio tightly, she ran into the warehouse. She walked rapidly through the darkness, through the opening which led to the ship. There was no one in sight as she ascended the slippery gangplank.

She stood uncertainly for a moment peering through the misty darkness before she heard a voice. "Wer da?" She drew back involuntarily. The gutteral German voice frightened her.

With MARIANNE

ALONG with new costumes and complexions for Easter, milady undoubtedly will want a new perfume, and because it's spring, as well as Easter time, the fragrance should be sweet, floral and fresh-smelling. . . . With this in mind, one of the country's leading cosmetologists is suggesting her "Nosegay" perfume, which has captured the fragrance of sweet-smelling buds like grandmother used to have in her old-fashioned flower garden. . . . And then in a series of three, this manufacturer has the "Floral Fantasies Series," containing a choice of such lovely, but varied scents as "Old Fashioned Pink Bouquet," "South American" and "Siren." And then there's one called "Sweet Suggestion" that's as elusive as a breeze and as sweet as any flowers you've ever sniffed. . . . All of these come in charming pink-capped "scroll" bottles, pretty enough to grace any dressing table.

Newest idea in makeup for spring is "Liquid Bronze-Glo." Designed for sun-tanned complexions, this liquid is to be applied with cotton and blended with the fingertips, and can be used as a powder foundation or without powder. . . . The rouge, of a harmonizing shade, is also a liquid, to be applied in the same way and blended with the fingertips.

Purses are a bit unusual, and ever so attractive, this spring. . . . One style I saw while shopping yesterday was pouch shaped with a zipper closing. . . . Made of beige faille silk, this purse was trimmed with dark brown faille covered buttons and a gold ring and faille handle. . . . In fact, this button idea seems to be a popular one, and many purses are brightened with enameled buttons—white ones on navy blue and pastel ones on white—the fabrics being straw cloth and hopsacking. . . . Many gabardine purses are also being shown for spring, and they're trimmed with calf, patent or reptile piping.

MANY of the shoes this spring have open-toes, and so if you're wearing them with your Easter costume, you'll be pleased to know that you can purchase hose with mesh-woven toes at the downtown stores now. . . . They'll be cooler for summer, and look much more attractive with those open-toe shoes.

OTHER NEW NOTES FOR SPRING: If you haven't yet selected your Easter suit, you'll want to see the pretty pastel-plaid ones that are being shown in some of the local shops just now. . . . Fashioned along tailored lines, most of the styles have notched collars and patch pockets, and they come in soft-toned plaid combinations of pink, beige and blue. . . . And if you're busy with the needle and thread, fashioning your own spring ensemble, some of the new spring buttons in the downtown stores will be sure to please you. . . . Many of them are carried out in patriotic red, white and blue colors, and some are trimmed in gold. . . . Stars, anchors and military buttons are very much in evidence for this season.

HAVE you seen those special kits for soldiers? Made of olive drab cloth, they contain a shoe buffer, a polishing brush, a mud brush, shoe polish, clothes brush and a felt polishing pad. . . . In fact, they contain all the things a soldier should need to keep his uniform and shoes in A-1 condition. . . . Many non-military folks think the kits so handy that they're buying them to keep in their automobiles.
